TUMULT OF SHOUTING

Uproar Marks Opening Of Hong Kong Report Debate As Premier, Tories Clash

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP)—A tumult of shouting, in which Prime Minister Mackenzie King described opposition members as a "mob" and defied them to silence him, marked the end of the morning stage of the Hong Kong debate in the House of Commons today.

Current Soviet Battle Is Most Important Yet

LONDON, July 27.—(CP)—British military and political circles were gravely concerned today over the course of the Russian fighting and described the current battle as "the most important yet fought," both from a military and an economic point of view.

These sources, whose names were not permitted to be published, described the German advance in the Tsimlyansk region as the "crucial battle" for Southern Russia. They said the danger that there would not be enough food saved for the Russian people had increased in the last few days. They pointed out that if the Germans could establish and hold bridgeheads over the Don at Tsimlyansk they would be less than 200 miles from the oil country in the Vitya and oil installations at Makop.

RICHES THAN UKRAINE

The lands just conquered or now threatened by the German drive in some parts are richer than the Ukraine and are almost as extensive, it was said.

In the Kursk and Voronezh provinces, 300,000 acres of wheat are under cultivation and there are even more extensive fields of wheat in the Azov-Black Sea area around Rostov and the North Caucasus.

Altogether, it was said, 22 per cent of the Soviet Union's cultivated land has been lost or threatened since the latest German offensive began. If the Germans reach the Volga at Stalingrad they will have gained almost all of Russia's cultivated land.

Premier Farms

ANTIGONISH, N.S., July 27.—(CP)—Heeding the provincial agriculture department's warning about the labor shortage, Premier A. S. MacMillan spent most of last week on his farm here, helping out with the hay.

Seek Delay In Army Call To Aid Harvesting

Delay in calling up men for military service; harvest leave on a large scale if call comes at a time when the weather is not favorable, with full pay, and allowances the same as for service men on furlough, and special harvest rates as in past years to induce flow of help to the west, were recommendations of the committee of government, labor and farm representatives, at a meeting here today to discuss the serious problem of farm harvest labor.

The committee met in the office of the Hon. D. MacMillan, Alberta minister of agriculture, and all phases of the problem and all plans for its solution were discussed. Organization was represented on the committee included: Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, Alberta Federation of Agriculture, United Farmers of Alberta, North West Live Elevators' Association, Alberta Wheat Pool, United Grain Growers, Provincial Milk and Inspected Cream Producers' Association, Municipal Districts' Association, Association of Municipal Secretaries-Treasurers, Unemployment Insurance Commission, Department of Education, Department of Trade and Industry, Department of Agriculture.

PURPOSE OF PARLEY
The conference was called to consider ways and means of harvesting the 1942 crop. The present outlook is for the largest crop since 1928 when it reached 1,000,000 bushels. It is estimated that harvesters from eastern Canada, advised from the Unemployment Insurance Commission is that it will be impossible to obtain any supply of harvest labor from west centers this year because of military war activities.

British Government Discouraging Public Clamor For Second Front

For impassioned speeches and for resolutions but for cool planning, the British government today took the line. ### CAIRO, Egypt, July 27.—(AP)—

The lull in action of the ground armies on the El Alamein front was broken last night when British forces launched a limited attack in the northern sector, British sources said today.

Long range fighters of the Royal Air Force attacked Axis barges off Sidi Barrani, another enemy supply port on the Egyptian coast, the British Air Force announced today.

Some minor air raids were reported to have limited aerial operations yesterday in the battle area, where the Germans and Italians were said to be digging in the vicinity of a renewal of the desert battle in which they were driven from their positions west of the El Alamein front.

British light bombers ranged over the enemy lines yesterday, blasting the Axis supply lines and supply depots, and the British light bombers ranged over the enemy lines yesterday, blasting the Axis supply lines and supply depots.

A British communication said that United States heavy bombers had gone into action with the British last night, carrying out a series of attacks on Toruk and Crete—from where the Axis forces have been reported drawing supplies.

There was comparatively little night activity over the weeks. Axis airmen did not take advantage of the lull in the night to carry out their usual attacks on British bases and strongholds.

Commando Raid Kills Sixty Japs

By VERN HAUGLAND

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, July 27.—(AP)—Allied troops, making another commando raid, killed about 60 Japanese near Salamaua in New Guinea, a communiqué said today.

Salamaua, 150 miles northwest of the new Japanese base in the Gona-Buna region, was the scene of a commando attack early this month when about 60 Japanese were reported slain.

Allied airmen continued to pound the Gona-Buna area all day Saturday and Sunday, a communiqué said, and were believed to have knocked out Japanese food and ammunition stores.

The Japanese landed in the Gona-Buna region in late June, representing a direct threat to Port Moresby, the Allied southern New Guinea base, and to the Australian mainland itself.

Darwin on Australia's north coast was attacked again early last night, the communiqué said, and the Japanese have threatened the threat to Australia. However, only three planes attacked the port city and damage was described as negligible.

Townsville, a city of 25,000 on the northeastern Australian coast, was attacked Saturday night by a number of Japanese bombers, a communiqué said.

The communiqué said that the Gona-Buna attack had been planned in their steady assaults Sunday included anti-aircraft and machine-gun batteries as well as supply dumps.

Two Allied planes were lost in recent dogfights, and one Japanese plane was seen to crash.

No details were given except for a statement that the suspected assassin in the case of the Japanese was a member of the Japanese Imperial Army, and that the Japanese were being held by the British.

4 Canuck Squadrons In Attack

LONDON, July 27.—(CP)—The big port of Hamburg, Germany's second largest city and greatest submarine building centre, was hit hard last night by the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. in the heaviest assault on the Reich since the 1,000-plane bombing of Bremen last month.

In addition to high explosives, the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. dropped more than 170,000 incendiary bombs, and Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris, chief of the bomber command, called the raid "one of the outstandingly successful attacks of the war."

The R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. were reported to have been successful in attacking the city of Hamburg, Germany's second largest city and greatest submarine building centre, was hit hard last night by the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. in the heaviest assault on the Reich since the 1,000-plane bombing of Bremen last month.

Without disclosing the number of bombers participating in the attack—the sixth on Hamburg this year and the first since the war began—a communiqué announced that 20 of the raiders failed to return.

VITAL U-BOAT CENTRE

(On the basis of losses of slightly under five per cent, British authorities have reported as the cost of similar recent heavy raids, working day and night, in a force of at least 600 planes.)

The communiqué said a "very strong force" attacked the city of 1,700,000 population whose Blohm and Voss shipyards alone are said to have a capacity to build 25 U-boats at a time, and whose war industries, working day and night, include oil refineries, explosive works, and a big aircraft factory.

German raiders striking at England from the low clouds of the early morning, bombed 23 areas, and destroyed one within 50 miles of London.

Two brief daylight alerts were called, and the first time in many months workday residents of inland counties, the black cross sweep low into the clouds, and the German raiders roared in.

NAZIS OVER WIDE AREA

The German bombers, for the most part operating singly, machine-gunned streets and houses and dropped bombs on western England, the south, the Midlands, the east coast, and towns and villages of East Angles.

Casualties (their number not disclosed) mounted with the reports of persons trapped in the wreckage of their homes or dug out by sweating rescue crews.

It was the fourth attack on Germany in six nights and followed a series of raids on Duxbury. The raiders were favored by good weather and first reports indicated that the attack was successful.

The German raid, acknowledging the attack, said it caused serious damage to residences and some civilian casualties. British planes were shot down. Later the Germans raised the figure to 33.

an upholder of freedom of speech and of the principles of freedom for which his grandfather, William Lyon Mackenzie, fought.

Mr. King sought to win in argument Mr. Diefenbaker who would not yield the floor until he had finished speaking. When Speaker Gies called Mr. Diefenbaker 40 minutes had expired. Mr. King roared.

He said the book had been circulated without his knowledge, and that he had no knowledge of its contents although he had no doubt they were true.

Regarding the request for publication of the Drew letter, he said: "I am not taking steps which would be taking steps which William Lyon Mackenzie did at this time to prevent the determining of the judiciary and of our established institutions."

There was so much shouting that it was impossible for him from the press gallery all the prime minister said.

Mr. Hanson jumped to his feet and shouted: "The Prime Minister cannot hang his hat on the judiciary."

MALIGNED CHIEF JUSTICE

The chief justice of Canada is being maligning in this house at this very minute," Mr. King shouted.

When the shouting continued Mr. King was heard to say: "It is typical Tory method shouting people down," and later, "I believe the right to speak is of no point of order and if any member thinks they can oppose me on that they are greatly mistaken."

Speaker Glen restored order with his ruling as to use of the evidence in debate and, at the request of Conservative House Leader Hanson gave Mr. Diefenbaker 15 minutes more before he was interrupted by the speaker.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he would again appeal to the prime minister to give all the evidence and all the facts to parliament and let it judge the circumstances.

He appealed also for a declaration from the government that the charge which was brought against Mr. Hanson was a "pure invention" and that the charge was a "pure invention" and that the charge was a "pure invention."

And in conclusion he asked the prime minister not to "call us a mob." He recalled that a few days ago he had been reported as having been "bowed down" in the House. That sort of thing had not enough in time of war.

How Green made his amendment to the motion to give an opportunity for discussion of the Hong Kong incident.

Mr. Green was first speaker in a debate which was expected to take up the whole day.

ONLY PARTLY TRAINED

He said the report revealed the Canadian force sent to Hong Kong last Oct. 22 was but partly trained and that men had not handled some of the weapons they would be called upon to use.

Mr. Green called for a change of policy which would ensure Canada had no actual training or handling of machine guns, mortars, tommy guns and anti-tank guns which had not been available for these troops in training in Canada. There was in the case of Hong Kong troops in the past.

Mr. Green said that the force left Canada without having even handled in training some of the most important weapons they would be called upon to use in action.

Mr. Green said some day Canadian troops must meet other seasoned troops and he said that Canada should make sure her men were ready when that time came.

Salvage Dealers Make Strong Link In Chain Valuable War Workers

By TOM SHANDBRO

Salvage dealers who have taken on the responsibility of serving as the middlemen between salvage collection committees and Dominion government salvage authorities, form an important link in the national war machine.

Various duties they are called upon to perform, exacting in nature and requiring the help of specialists, general organization within the premises made necessary due to the bulkiness of materials handled, and numerous other detailed expenses tax to the limit the initiative and resourcefulness of the dealers and their assistants.

Only dealers licensed by the government are allowed to handle salvage. In making application for the job, the junk dealer is asked to post a bond of from $1,000 to $5,000 as security in good faith.

Size of the bond depends upon the dealer's rating according to capacity to handle the materials expected.

THREE DEALERS

In Edmonton the Wartime Salvage Ltd., which is the Crown Salvage Ltd., to date has salvaged 13,000 tons of scrap metal.

These are the Edmonton Junk Company, with Ed. Sullivan proprietor, and the Western Junk Company, with Ed. Sullivan proprietor.

On the shoulders of these three men, the government has placed the task of handling the materials from the time it arrives on the premises to the time it is ready to be shipped.

It is estimated that at present the three firms are handling daily from 15 and 100 tons of scrap metal alone. Two to three carloads, collected by rural and urban salvage committees, are brought in co-operation with elevator companies, and other means, and are deposited at the scrap yards.

Throughout northern Alberta, arrive in the city daily.

Upon arrival, the metal is unloaded, and is then taken to the scrap yard.

alone, the mid-day Russian counter-attack. The Russian counter-attack against the Germans seeking to cross the Don simultaneously in several places.

Earlier the Russians had acknowledged the establishment of at least two German bridgeheads in the Tsimlyansk area.

"Our men have pinned down the German drive with their own forces and are preventing them from advancing," the Russian communiqué said.

At the same time the Germans hammered mercilessly at Rostov with some success. The Russians said that at one point the German drive broke through the heart of the Soviet defenses at a tremendous cost.

BATTLE AT VORONEZH

From their bridgeheads on the Don near Tsimlyansk, the Germans were pressing southward against bitter Russian resistance, apparently trying to cut the railroads connecting Stalingrad with the North Caucasus about 50 miles south of Tsimlyansk.

On the Upper Don, the Soviet counterattacks around Voronezh are continuing and the Russians reported that "All Axis attempts to regain important positions were unsuccessful. The Russians are sustaining heavy losses."

conducted by the provincial department of agriculture. At July 6 the survey shows that 71 per cent of the farmers in Alberta reported a shortage of labor.

An organization is now being put into effect to utilize all available labor to meet the emergency.

At the same time, the provincial department of agriculture is proposing that municipal district organizations be organized to effectively utilize all local labor and equipment, with a view to taking care of the emergency.

To make a survey of local labor resources for the purpose of determining whether surplus labor is available or alternatively, the minimum requirements to meet local harvest needs.

LARGER ZONE

The Provincial Department of Agriculture, through its field staff, co-ordinate municipal activities within a larger zone and assist municipal organizations in their activities.

To release high school students to help with the harvest at a time and in a manner that may most effectively meet local needs, the Provincial Department of Education is being asked to release students to the fullest extent in this endeavor.

Under the plan, short-term prisoners when practicable.

To encourage the utilization of alien enemy internees now in government camps, whose conduct would be certified by individual farmers and approved by the military authorities.

CHARLES MISTAKE

The people sought assurance through inquiry that events such as those which had happened in respect to the Hong Kong expedition would not be repeated. The mistakes might be avoided by the nature through open inquiry, but instead of co-operating in this attitude, the government had "blundered and stumbled."

Mr. Diefenbaker went to the booklet which he said contained lectures given to men in the Canadian expeditionary force. One of the statements in the booklet was that the government under Prime Minister King was "not free of criticism in the past."

There is the No. 1 heavy melting scrap, the lighter iron scrap and the stove iron scrap.

Copper is sorted into three categories: aluminum into four, brass into three and lead into two.

These are the auto radiators from a long line of metal machinery which have been brought to the scrap yard.

The amount of scrap collected from the scrap materials is astounding. The elimination of shoe tins alone was the equivalent of 100,000 tons of scrap.

CHICAGO, July 17.—(RUP)—A boy had just brought in the sizzling chickens on the flaming awards in the Ambassador's swank pump room when Maj. Edwynd H. Williams said, "Right now I am more interested in men—jockeys—than in horses."

Major Williams is a reserve army officer and chairman of the Illinois Racing Board. "Down through the years much has been said about improving the breed of horses in the race," Williams said, "but the little of jockeys—the key men in the sport. I'm concentrating on improving the conditions, at least under which jockeys work."

One who calls Chairman Williams "Edwynd" because he is a reserve army officer and chairman of the Illinois Racing Board. "Down through the years much has been said about improving the breed of horses in the race," Williams said, "but the little of jockeys—the key men in the sport. I'm concentrating on improving the conditions, at least under which jockeys work."

ED WILLIAMS is a small man with a big mind, a chap who can forget that he came up in the Burn in the coal-mining town of Bethesda, he was taken to a Minnesota farm at an early age and labored in the hard earth except when he and his brothers were riding horses back from school. He later hit out for the hostile cities and carved out an education. Little Ed Williams, middle-aged now with a preponderance of white in his heavy skull, is still a jockey.

We expected the racing commissioner to talk of Shut Out and his dramatic victory in Saturday's Arlington classic. That shut out the three-year-olds. But he never mentioned Shut Out. He talked only of jockeys and of "boys."

Williams, as chairman of the Illinois Racing Board, has one of the most important racing jobs in the country. But it is a post that gives only prestige to the man who occupies it, because it pays neither salary nor expenses. He was made chairman last year, when he was pointed on a six-year basis. No matter what he does, they can't say "out."

Because of this feeling of independence and because he is known and knows horse-racing, he accepted the job and started his reforms. Jockeys' key men in racing are the "jockeys," little Ed explained, "regardless of the abilities of the horses, unless they are ridden properly they won't win. Having fans expect jockeys to be honest."

People Indulge In Summer Discomforts

Part of Tradition to Do and Live Differently Regardless of Suffering; It's Often Good To Get Home Once Again

Who was the hopeless optimist who in a cubicle under the roof who first began ballyhooing about the good old summer? Another was his name for I know it was a man. No woman who has ever gone through the strain of trying to keep a permanent permanent in the heat of a plate of ice cream at a picnic, and who has been herself to a frazzle in a vain attempt to look fresh and crisp in clothes that appeared to have gone through the wringer, ever wanted any breath in touting the charms of summer.

In reality, summer is the time that combines most of the unpleasant phases of the other seasons of the year, and then adds a special line of afflictions of its own. It is when we are most irritable in disposition and when our morals and our morale are as flabby as our collars. We do things in the summer we would be incapable of doing in the winter. Men who are Josephs in January are Don Juans in August. Women who models of virtue in December daily go through the primrose path of vice in June. Prim maiden ladies strip off their inhibitions along with their high-necked and long-sleeved undergarments and appear on the beach in bathing costumes that would make Sally Rand feel that she was over-dressed.

Why summer has this effect upon us we do not know. It just does. It is just part of the tradition that is the dot days of the year differently and live differently and be joyous and carefree and sing a merry round, though heaven knows this imposes sufferings upon us that makes us wish that if we will have the strength to live through it until fall.

To attempt to catalogue all of the discomforts of summer would take a bill of material longer than one of Mr. Dies' reports about his suspicions. But, passing lightly over the mosquitoes and sandflies and red-bugs and poison ivy and such minor afflictions that pertain particularly to summer, let us leap at once to that ever potent source of torture—the summer cottage or shack in the woods, or the tent by the brookside.

What agonies of discomfort, what weariness of bone and muscle, what sleeplessness of nights what boredom these impose upon poor, gallant, innocent men and women, no tongue can tell. Yet every year, driven by some mysterious compulsion they cannot resist, millions of people who have comfortable homes with all the conveniences handy and who's right around the corner, in case the mosquito gets and live in aquaria and eat out of cans and lie on beds that seem stuffed with rocks, just because it is summer.

Summer is also responsible for all other horrors—the weekend. At other times of the year your friends are humane enough to let you have your Saturday and Sunday to yourself and exercise your constitutional right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, according to your own taste. But just let July show its head and the thermometer hover around the 80s and you are a dead duck.

Everyone who has anything against you pays off score by not only asking, but positively threatening, when they meet a weekend with them at their little place in the country, where you

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDERD

Unquestionably, children do dream, and often their dreams may be terrifying ones. Especially so in the case of the 2 to 4 year old, who is old enough to be victim of scary things heard and is still too young to be completely free of the subconscious.

While night terrors are less commonplace in the life of summer, they are still present, when physical conditions related to lack of calcium increase night terrors, they do occur and in typical fashion.

The child emits a scream and when the parent goes to his room he is sitting up, staring wildly into space and whimpering or crying or else insisting that he is a wolf. He saw it, he did, right under the dresser. Sometimes it may be an Indian lurking behind the big chair or it wouldn't be surprising in these days if the bedroom invader were a Jap.

It's a bad policy to countenance absurdities and pretend to hunt for them if we want to dispel them. When the child tells what he thinks he has seen we should be reassuring, not argumentative or credulous. "What you saw, perhaps, was a picture in your mind and we'll think of you as Indian, which you saw in your picture book, or thought of when I told you a story."

"Of course, there are no real bears in houses, and if there were Daddy and Mother are right here to prevent anything getting near enough to harm their dear little son. Lie down and we'll think of some nice story you can remember when you wake up."

Frightening stories, prayers with implications of death, threats about going away because the child is naughty, these are the images of disaster which stay with a child and when he is off guard at night, reappear to him as horrible images which menace his safety.

The child who is loved, who has exciting but not horrible stories to think about, who knows his parents would never willingly harm him, for any cause—will dream only those evanescent visions which leave his sleep undisturbed.

Physical reasons for bad dreams are discussed in the "Night Terrors," which may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Elderd in care of this newspaper.

The usual cause of neuritis is a toxic or poisonous irritant which has been circulating in the blood and has accumulated around the affected nerve causing it to become inflamed. The treatment should be designed to remove the toxic cause and should be begun as early as possible to prevent further damage or injury to the nerve such as may result after prolonged inflammation.

The best method I have found for eliminating any toxins which may have formed is some type of the fasting regime. I would advise that the patient take a five fast on any one of the following fruit juices: orange juice, tomato juice, grapefruit juice, unsweetened pineapple juice (canned). These fruit juices not only provide the body with vitamins but they also furnish the alkaline food minerals which are so necessary in overcoming the condition so often found when neuritis is present.

Following the fast, one must be sure to include plenty of cooked and raw vegetables in the diet, as these will assist in overcoming any constipation and thus lessen the tendency to irritation from retained wastes. Also one or two enemas will be of great benefit in the fast in order to keep the colon as clean as possible.

In some cases neuritis is due to what can be termed mechanical causes. If the nerve is affected slightly or in places, or if muscles, ligaments, or adhesions are pressing on the nerve, a definite neuropathic result which can only be cured by a treatment designed to remove the mechanical cause. A temporary relief from the pain of neuritis may be secured through using hot applications or electrical treatments. The patient should rest and keep the affected part warm. The hot water bottle, the electric pad, hot applications, or treatments with the deep heat lamp are helpful. While heat will relieve the pain, for permanent relief you must rely on the right diet, keeping the bowels cleansed and the proper manipulative treatment.

I have seen many hundreds of cases in which the patient was able to overcome any tendency to neuritis through following my method of treatment and I have also received a large number of letters from people who have followed my instructions and have written in to tell me of the good results they obtained after following my instructions. I have also received many letters of this kind encouraging me to keep on writing these articles. I try to make as helpful as I possibly can.

There is reason to believe that lack of vitamin B1 in the diet is one of the causes of polyneuritis, although the presence in the blood of irritating poisons is another important cause.

All questions regarding Health and Diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side only, please. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, 1151 West 60th St., Los Angeles, Calif.

FIFTH COLUMNISTS SERIOUS DANGER

Egypt Tense As Axis Threatens Valley Of Nile

Julie Bishop—lovely Hollywood player—appears for the candid cameraman in her best Waikiki Beach hula hula regalia and her most come-lither smile. She supports Ida Lupino, Joan Leslie, Dennis Morgan and Jack Carson in Warners' "The Hard Way."

Egypt is becoming tense as Axis forces press toward the Valley of the Nile. Fifth column activities are a serious problem with some 60,000 first and second generation Italians in the country and a traitorous element among the natives. This extends to even high places. The former Egyptian premier asked General Wavell for a copy of his battle plans. Suspicious, the general supplied him with a faked copy. Later on, copies of these faked plans were found on Italian officers taken prisoner by the British. As usual the fifth columnists seek to break native morale by spreading wild rumors and arguing that the presence of United Nations forces is only a magnet for Axis bombs. Above picture shows British planes over Aboukir air base near Alexandria.

Yep, You Guessed It

Scene: New York. Source of water: fire hydrant. Reason for shenanigans: you guessed it—Heat. New York's 92 degrees, the year's high, was typical of Eastern temperatures.

Youngest Camp Adjutant

Lieut. John A. Brayley, 22-year-old graduate of Loyola College, Montreal, is the youngest camp adjutant in the Canadian army. He was recently promoted to his present position at the officers' training centre Brockville, when an air injury prevented him going overseas.

Envy Of Nazis

A Canadian-built armored car kicks up clouds of dust as it races through its test run. Vehicles such as these brought forth comments of praise from Nazis, as confirmed in a German document seized recently in the Middle East.

The war has brought a terrific boom to Cairo as the United Nations pour millions into the defence of the Nile and Suez. Merchants are making fortunes, rooms are almost impossible to obtain, night life businesses are cleaning up and gambling barges anchored in the Nile are crowded. Above is a cross section of the cosmopolitan crowd that attends the popular Heliopolis race track.

First to be radioed to the United States from Egypt, the photograph above shows Alexander Kirk, left, American minister, and King Farouk of Egypt, in the royal palace in Cairo. Previously, Near East photos had to be relayed through London. New R.C.A. service requires only 10 minutes to complete a transmission.

Dear Toots

At an air training camp somewhere in New England, Lieut. Shien Hwei Feng writes a letter to his girl in China, whose picture brightens his wall.

Busy Yank

Reported "missing in action" in Libya, Master Sergeant George L. Seastrom, above, of the U. S. Army, turned up in Cairo, Egypt, a month later after spending the time "nursing" partly disabled American tanks to keep 'em rolling for the British. Confident smile tells story of his success.

Chinese Fight For Canada

First of their race to wear the uniforms of the Canadian army in this war are these Chinese cousins, born in Victoria, B.C. They are Pte. Edna Low of the C.W.A.C., and Corp. C. Low of No. 11 detachment, C.M.S.C. Corp. Low enlisted in January, 1941, and his cousin recently donned the C.W.A.C. uniform.

Ace Lost

"A million to one chance shot" from a German machine gun, firing from a French beach, ended the spectacular career of Brendan (Paddy) Finucane, above, crack R.A.F. fighter pilot credited with shooting down 33 enemy planes. Finucane, recently promoted to acting wing commander, was participating in a big low-level daylight raid.

Dies

M. L. Annenberg—immigrant newsboy, circulation genius, millionaire publisher and, finally, a federal prisoner who won his parole only seven weeks ago—died July 20 at Rochester, Minn. He was 64.

Barbara Stanwyk—who in private life is Mrs. Robert Taylor—takes time away from the microphones to visit the sea-shore. One of her latest starring vehicles is Warners' "The Gay Sisters" in which she appears with George Brent.

Fought Themselves To Pieces

Huge U. S. Catalinas, such as shown above, meant only for patrol work, carried bombs and even torpedoes to hurl at Japs invading the Aleutians. They flew until they literally fought themselves to pieces.

BANNERS FLYING

By Mary Raymond

Christie Cotton has promised to dance with Bart Henderson, but to do so, she must first be persuaded to leave her home in the city and go to the country. When she is about to tell her two best friends, Jan and Sue, that she is going to leave, she is interrupted by a knock. From Jan's description, it seems the man just to be interesting.

CHAPTER IV

CHRISTIE had a noon luncheon date with Bart Henderson, but she was spending the morning with her mother, and Christie was meeting with a committee on the Pele of the Lanterns, a benefit for Chinese relief.

The meeting was at Mildred Lacy's which was five miles out—past the airport. Christie's low-powered roadster quickly covered the distance and soon was whirling about the circling drive.

A group of her friends—Eileen Wells, Roberta Ineson, Elaine Rich and Sue Foster had all been invited. And—Christie paused a moment in the doorway as she shook of surprise ran through her—another girl? A girl with a cloud of dark hair framing her face, a creak between her poppy-red lips.

"Christie," Mildred exclaimed, "we're really in luck. This is Sandra Rydall. She spent some months in China once, and she has the greatest ideas. Wait until you hear them."

"Yes, you've met," Mildred continued. "We've, we've," Christie replied, "at the dance last night."

"You ran into on many people."

Hold Everything

"They're really not gloves—I just spilled my stockings!"

"Spar--"

"If you really loved me, you wouldn't be leaving it up to some old Top Sergeant to say when you could see me again!"

"Curious World —By William Ferguson"

"I never saw him before," Christie answered. "He must be delirious."

The attendant shook his head. "I think it's the first conscious moment he's had since the accident. Where's the pilot?"

"I'm the pilot," Christie said. She saw the amazement and doubt on the faces about her. Suddenly, she felt a surge of confidence.

"I'll get him there," she said. (To Be Continued)

know I'm not interested in the bill. I don't care whether it's a success or not. It rather amused me to show up a lot of superior people.

"That's all. Behind all that good will in there, you really don't like me, and you know how I feel about you. This is just to keep the record straight from now on."

"I had almost meant to tell you a little," Christie said. "At least I was trying not to dislike you."

"Don't bother to try," Sandra said. "Why are you so sure we could not be friends?" Christie asked, slowly.

"We happen to care for the same man," Sandra said, bluntly. The sheer audacity of it, the unexpectedness of it, caught Christie off guard. Girls didn't do things like this—she didn't do things like this.

"I have been living abroad for years," Sandra said. "Things were not easy—lots of times. I learned hard. Things are happening so fast now, if you don't grab all the fun and happiness, you can, you're likely to be too late."

"I see," Christie fought the primitive impulse to cry out. "But what do you say good here, Sandra? You are in a different world, where people still live by a different set of rules."

"On an impulse she slowed down. She had been a few moments to spare before time to meet Bart. She'd drive by and tell Rose she was through with flying."

Bill Blake hurried out to meet her. "Gosh, Christie, I'm glad you are here. You're an answer to my prayers."

"What's the matter, Bill? Anything serious?"

"Serious as hell," Bill answered. They phoned from the local hospital, they're sending an emergency case here. Concussion from an automobile accident. They think this guy needs a brain operation and they're rushing him to Lakeside to some chap there who specializes in brain surgery."

"If I could catch Bart," Christie said, "there's no time to get anybody."

"This 'chap' got to go to 20 now. They wanted the plane warmed up and waiting for him. He'll take him over, Christie. I know you can. You couldn't miss. Just wait for the driver. They're keeping everything wide and clear at the other end."

"But I couldn't," Christie said, trembling. "Oh, Bill, why can't you?"

"Because I never learned. I know what takes them up, but I can't take them up. Funny, isn't it?"

"It isn't funny," Christie said. "It's dreadful. But I must crack up and kill him, Bill."

"Well, he'll probably die, anyway, unless he gets to his surgeon. It's only 20 miles, Christie. You've got to do it. There is the ambulance now."

She had to do it. She had promised Bart she'd stay out of the air. But she had to do it. She must hold on to every bit of common sense and courage she had, and go through with this.

"Warm up, Bill," she said. They were lifting the injured man from the ambulance. Christie walked over and looked down on him. He was young, and he had good features. His blonde hair showed above the wide, thick bandage that bound his head.

As she watched, pity in her eyes, the wounded man opened his eyes. He was looking at Christie with a queer, bewildered expression. After a moment the bewilderment was gone. "Oh, it's you," the stranger said. He closed his eyes again.

"Know this chap?" the hospital attendant asked. "Relative of yours?"

"I never saw him before," Christie answered. "He must be delirious."

The attendant shook his head. "I think it's the first conscious moment he's had since the accident. Where's the pilot?"

"I'm the pilot," Christie said. She saw the amazement and doubt on the faces about her. Suddenly, she felt a surge of confidence.

"I'll get him there," she said. (To Be Continued)

"What To Do"

Please suggest a suitable menu and means of serving a simple wedding breakfast.

Answer: A wedding breakfast may take place any time of day—but not at night. I think a buffet breakfast is the simplest way to accommodate a number of people.

For the hot dish (and there should be one), serve chicken and mushroom patties. Have huge molded fruit salads, and dainty hot rolls.

Serve coffee and tea—and of course supply a wedding punch to toast the bride—and a beautiful white frosted wedding cake.

There are 17 types of sergeants in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Destruction By Hail Is Reduced Over Last Year

Hail losses in Alberta this year to July 23 were one-half of the losses for the corresponding period of 1941, it is indicated in claims received by the Alberta Hail Insurance Board. The board has 600 claims as compared with 1,200 in the 1941 period, according to the chairman, Fred A. Manning.

Approximately 1,400 acres of the crop of the Hutterite colony at Cayley, near High River, was destroyed in a storm last Wednesday and the Colony had no insurance. The storm battered about 3,000 acres of crop in the district.

The area, north of a line running across the province through Westsaskin, hard hit in other years, has escaped with little damage this year to date, the Alberta Hail Insurance Board's map of hail losses shows. Besides the Cayley district the heaviest losses have occurred in the Brooks, Stettin, and Lacombe Standard districts.

LIGHTER DAMAGE
Lighter damage has been reported from the Consort and Coronation areas. Private hail insurance companies also report claims to date this year well below the 1941 totals.

Heaviest hail damage in Alberta usually occurs during July and August, according to records kept by the companies. There were a few hail storms in September, 1941, but these were exceptional.

Alberta has the highest hail loss record of any province in Canada, the North American continent, according to comparative figures compiled by Mr. Manning.

Visitors' Week At University In Full Swing

Visitors' week at the University of Alberta department of field crops commenced Monday, July 27, with a series of lectures and demonstrations in the Edmonton district being called at the test crop plots. It is the latest development in crop production.

The visitors are being shown progress at the results of extensive tests of new and standard varieties of crops, experiments on disease prevention, seed treatment, laboratory work and other operations of the department. Since members are on duty all week.

On Saturday morning, Aug. 1, the first indoor meeting will be held. At this meeting members of the staff will review the results of the field tests to producers of field crops. The meeting will discuss the results of the production, particularly those arising as a result of war conditions.

The afternoon of Saturday, Aug. 1, will be free for visiting the fields, greenhouses and laboratory work of the department. This may be the best time for a visit from persons who have general interest in crop production, or who are not yet acquainted with the work.

Police Are Seeking Mother 2 Children

City police are investigating the disappearance of a woman on July 19 after leaving her two children with a friend in the city.

Grace Addison, 3738 104 avenue, reported to city police that a woman, known to her only as "Bubbles," left the city after leaving her two children, age one and three, with her.

Since the report, an aunt of the missing woman has been found and she has volunteered to take care of the children till the father, who is a soldier, arrives, or the mother returns.

Orient Experiences At Kiwanis Lunch

Edmonton Kiwanians heard Donald Menzies, Journal reporter, speak on some of his experiences in the Orient, at their regular weekly luncheon meeting at the Staddon hotel Monday.

Mr. Menzies spent several years in China and Japan in the late 1930's, and as the result of some of his experiences with the Japanese and Chinese, he gave the Kiwanians his reasons for believing that the conquest of the Chinese by the Japs, is not likely.

ROAD REPORT

A.M.A. Safety Slogan: You can't depend on luck for a good safety record. It's good driving that counts.

There's No "For Men Only" Sign In War Industry

As more women enlist in war industry, more jobs hitherto done only by men are filled by women workers. Latest estimate reports more than 125,000 women now engaged in industrial work. The pretty lathe operator in the upper photo is one of the 50 operations required to turn a steel forging into a 2,000-pound 3.7 inch gun barrel. The girl handling the man-size tank in the lower picture is one of the five female crane operators in one of the Dominion's largest gun plants, turning out heavy anti-aircraft artillery on behalf of the Department of Munitions and Supply. She is shown lowering a gun barrel to a lathe.

Police, Firemen Rescue Burning Man From Auto

City police and firemen collaborated early Sunday morning in first rescuing a man out of a burning car, then placing him behind the cell bars for "safe keeping."

A policeman, on patrol on Jasper avenue near 57 street, noticed smoke emanating from a car parked along the curb. A driver survey revealed that a man was sitting at the wheel; apparently unaware of his precarious plight.

The police dragged him out of the car, put out the flames that were rapidly devouring his garments, and hauled him into the cells.

While the police were concerned about the safe keeping of the occupant of the car, the vehicle itself was getting a new lease of life with the firemen saving it from complete destruction. The upholstery was badly damaged.

Debunker

SUN DIALS aren't

RELIABLE TIMEKEEPERS

The sun is wrong 90 per cent of the time, when it comes to telling correct time. We do not use solar time for our standard, because of this. The sun is not always ahead of time or behind time, and for only 4 seconds each year it is accurate. It has been necessary for scientists to create an artificial or "mean" standard of time to regulate our clocks by. Sun dials are almost always erroneous, and readings have to be "corrected" daily, except when the sun is directly over the equator.

Board To Move

Staff of the War Service Bureau Board will take over offices in the Monarch building, Jasper avenue, at the beginning of August. It was reported Monday, and the War Service Bureau Board at the court house, will occupy the offices in the Shasta block vacated by the War Service Board.
